

LINEN POPULAR FOR STREET WEAR.

BY ANNE RITTENHOUSE.

NEW YORK, June 28 .- If it were not for the expense of laundry work, the American women would see to it, ere outfitted with an abundance of clothes made of comfortable fabrics.

climate is like what Thackeray once described as "blizzards of ice followed blizzards of heat"; and of the latter, we will have many during the doubt, therefore, about the climate that we must face on this continent mer in the former country allows its thermometer to register well into the Maine mountains when the temperature goes to 95, and there is constant stewing in the middle regions, with the thermometer over 85 for weeks at a

To be comfortable, one must be cool. and to be cool one must wear light fabrics. So much for the knowledge that we have gained through successive generations living in America. But there are other things that have to be balanced against this knowledge, ene of which is the money it takes to dress according to the summer climate.

Revival of Linen.

It has often been asked why the men orth of Mason and Dixon's line do not adopt the linen costumes that were the south and which are still worn by the men in Cuba. We have days piled on and lovely green, in red, in yellow, in old gold, in violet-a pale, soft shadeand in various combinations.

and in various combinations.

Black and white candles are, of course, a shade smarter than any other kind. The vogue for black and white has had a remarkably long duration and seems as strong now as it was a year ago. Somebody explained this vogue by saying that the war, with the consequent shortage of dyes, made it necessary to use black and white things—and naturally we made a virtue of the necessity by emphasizing the fad for black and white that we had borrowed from Vienna. To get back to black and white candles, they are made in stripes, and they are made with black designs painted on white candles. They look well in candlesticks of any sort—white porcelain, black and white enamel, silver, brass or mahogany.

There are pretty candles painted in colors. Some, of white, are decorated with blue swallows of different sizes sprinkled over their surface. Others show tiny roses of pink and red with green foliage.

The woman who can use oil paints can easily paint candles with some simple design, and so save the price of the painted ones in the shops. Any simple decoration is quite suitable for candle embellishment. Either some little flower design or something geometrical is attractive.

A good way to make colored candles, as well as white ones, fit firmly into the candle holders is to dip them into boiling water and then, while they are soft from the heat, press them firmly into the candlesticks.

On very hot days place candles of any sort in the refrigerator to keep them from losing their upright posi-tion, and also to make them burn more slowly and, therefore, last longer.

But when she told him about the young Meadow Mouse which Granny had caught and left at the entrance to one of Peter's private little paths he gave Mrs. Peter a funny, sidewise look.

"Huh!" he grunted. "Huh! I never have known old Granny Fox to do anything like that. It must be she has done it for a purpose. Cherry Pie.

The cherry season is again upon us, but the season is short. Cherry pie is about "the best thing ever." Take a sharp steel knife, and, removing the pits, line a plate with rice paste, brush over it with white of egg and fill with the pitted cherries and sweeten according to their sourness; pour in juice and cover with a thin top cruat with slits through, so as to let the steam escape.

Sharpness in little Mrs. Peter's answer. "You better go stay with Peter a while," said he. "I think I'll go watch Granny Fox and see what I can find out."

So Old Mr. Toad hopped along one of Peter's private little paths and presently came to the edge of the dear Old Brier Patch. Then he discovered something which had quite slipped his mind

COLORED CANDLES.

That is a mistake. They often have fust as much pride as others who seem to be more fortunate. Old Mr. Toad had said that he was going to watch old Granny Fox. His pride wouldn't allow him to go back to Mrs. Peter and confess he couldn't see over the grass. At least he couldn't see over the grass. At least he couldn't go back until he had tried every way he could think of to see over that grass. How he did wish he could climb like his cousin. Sticky-toes the Tree Toad!

But he couldn't, and he is altogether too sensible, is Old Mr. Toad, to waste any time on vain wishes. He looked about, this way and that way, to see if there might be something he could get up on so as to see over the grass. At length he discovered an old stump, where once upon a time a good-sized tree had stood. It was right at the

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your reckles, as the prescription othine—double strength—is gravanteed to remove these inquely spots.

Simply get an ounce of othine—double strength—from any druggist had anyly a little of it night and manulus, and you should soon see that even the worst frockles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than an ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

"Of course it's for something. Any one with any wits at all would know that, and that something is to try to catch Peter," replied Mrs. Peter, and her voice sounded rather snappy.
You see, she was worried. She knows just how sharp and cunning old Granny Fox is, and in her own mind there wasn't a doubt that this was part of some clever-plan on the part of Granny to catch Peter. For the life of her she couldn't see through it herself and she was disappointed because Old Mr. Toad didn't seem to have any better idea than she had as to what Granny Fox was doing. was doing.
Old Mr. Toad took no notice of the

He had come to watch old Granny Fox and now he couldn't see her at all because the grass was above his head.

Methods of raising revenue contemplated in the Kitchin revenue bill, it is safe to assume, will not be based on any expectation of a bond issue, authority for which now vests in the Secretary of the Treasury at his discretion, without necessity of further authorization by Congress.

The estimate of the prospective balance in the general fund, at the close of the fiscal year, was made six weeks ago. It was figured that there would be over $200,000,000 balance, based on the present form of the balance sheet—with about $50,000,000 of this amount in the hayds of disbursing officers, making a fair basis of comparison with the balance sheet of former years. The income tax, it is estimated, will exceed by $35,000,000. The internal revenues generally are far in excess of estimate of $85,000,000. The internal revenues generally are far in excess of estimate, as are the customs revenues. Since the estimate was made the prospect is brighter if anything, and might warrant even a higher estimate of the prospective balance. And that estimate figured that, with the balance of $150,000,000 on hand June 30, added to the anticipated revenues for the year under existing laws, would meet all estimated expenditives for the fiscal year 1917 and leave a balance of $13,000,000.
